SATELLITE ART SHOW to transform an abandoned beachfront hotel into an immersive arts-focused experience for Miami Art Week 2017.

SATELLITE 2017 will be held at the Ocean Terrace Hotel, an abandoned beachfront hotel that provides us with complete creative control. Our alternative venue coupled with our focus on experiential installations, makes SATELLITE the antithesis to the standard art fair. #satelliteartshow #notbasel

November 15, 2017 —

40 rooms of an abandoned hotel repurposed into immersive, experiential, and often participatory exhibitions. SATELLITE, now in its third year is an artist-run and concept-driven alternative art fair that positions itself at the convergence of art, performance, new media, and technology. “The return to our dystopian hotel is a natural move for us. South Beach was great last year, but we were restricted by the regulations of the space. This year we will provide a truly visionary experience for our guests, restriction free” said SATELLITE creative director Brian Whiteley of the fair’s experiential emphasis.

SATELLITE’s repurposed hotel spaces will house a dynamic array of art presentations as well as interactive and experiential installations. Acclaimed collective Meow Wolf is creating a brand new environment exclusively for SATELLITE. Returning for the third year in a row is New Orleans own Dangerous Rose. This year Rose will present her newest project “Clown-Cockateur”, a provocative and sensual “clown-meets-pole-dancer” experience. Performance is Alive’s nonstop performance art lounge returns for the second year and will feature over 20 pieces with interactive performances, durational works on the beach and video screenings. Some highlights of the program will be a politically focused panel discussion/slumber party hosted by Operation Catsuit, Ayana Evans and PINK PRIVACY, and an intimate performance by acclaimed poet/artist Jessica Yatrofsky. Miami’s Borscht Corp (a popular biennial in film, tech and performance) is set to debut a special installation of works just for SATELLITE and is a great opportunity to discover local talent during an arts week typically focused on international players. Bushwick’s Famous On Mars returns for the second year and has partnered with Susie Magazine to produce a rotating array of wearable art objects, live tattooing (2 days), a zine nook with feminist publications available to peruse and purchase, and fine art objects with a strong participatory component. Miami’s Nice’N Easy will be transforming the main lobby of SATELLITE into a hazy, beach-dazed “guest check-in” installation. If you’re looking to check out some cutting edge works of art and get a free hair cut/dye job, head to the TANGA collective’s booth. The School of Visual Art NY will present two installations, one of which includes a lie detector test inside of a defunct bathroom. Keeping fun and interactivity at the forefront, SATELLITE has two “Dance Hall” installations for you to experience. Haute to Death, a popular nightclub from Detroit will be producing a micro nightclub and sculpture installation and The HAUNT (in partnership with GIPHY), has created a virtual reality dance hall, so pop on the oculus goggles and dance with the “ghosts of Miami’s past”, all on a light up dance stage. Acclaimed performance artist Kalup Linzy will be debuting his “Tangled Up” music video series at SATELLITE – so we can also expect live performances from this world-class artist! If you want to play some beer pong, head to the LOG/Camayhus booth where artist collective Girl Don’t Be Dumb will challenge you to an epic Beer Pong game. NY’s CHASM is presenting the work of visual artist Julia Sinelnikova, a veteran of the Brooklyn art scene who recently broke out of her local niche after being awarded a large-scale public art commission for the parks department in NYC. While you traverse the halls of SATELLITE please pay attention to all the nooks, crannies and closets as NY Collective Lounge Corp has taken over these locations for some “Fish Bowl Art Exhibitions”.

Aside from a stellar array of fine art presentations, SATELLITE has partnered with NY’s Le Poisson Rouge to produce several after parties at local neighborhood dive bar “On The Rocks”. Full list of talent to be released shortly!

Through a regard for collectability but an emphasis on interactivity and unfiltered creative expression, SATELLITE Art Show aims not to compete with its sister satellite fairs but to differentiate itself as the most memorable art-viewing experience visitors will have all week. Expect the unexpected and stay for all the experiences, as no two moments will be the same at SATELLITE. We look forward to welcoming you to our abandoned hotel on the beach. #satelliteartshow #notbasel
